The authorities recognize the bot-tom fact, that the hateful conduct of Reds is at the bottom of the trouble; that the Bolsheviki would like nothing better than to provoke bloodshed and general disorder. While soldiers and sailors have no right whatever, the officials state, to interfere in strictly police work, nevertheess there is sympathy for their attitude which is simply that of impulsive patriotism. The difficult feature in this problem concerns the attitude of the police toward soldiers and sailors. The police must protect citizens and enforce order even against men in uni-If Bolshevist meetings and parades are to be permitted it is fnevitable, officials recognize, that more riots must occur.

The remedy to be urged before Gov.
